PITTSBURGH NOW
FOR AMERICANS.

Johnson Has Practically Given
Up Hope of Putting Rival
Team to Giants Here.

From Pittsburgh now comes the rumor that the American League will not locate in New York after all and that the new team will be put in that city. From there also comes rumors that President Johnson has had trouble during his gum-shoe visit to New York and that he is ready to call everything off so far as this city is concerned.

Johnson slipped out of New York as quietly as he slipped in and managed to get away without giving out any more statements as to the team he would put in New York. To-day he is in Pittsburgh, and it is claimed that there is where the new American team will be located.

COLUMBIA WILL KEEP HER GRADUATE COACHES.

Despite Poor Showing Made by Team this Year, no Outsider Will Be Engaged.

Despite the poor showing made by the eleven on the gridiron this year the Columbia students do not blame it upon the system of coaching in vogue, and there will be no change next year in the manner in which the team will be prepared.

Coach Morley may not have charge of the team, but whoever takes his place will be an old member of the team and a graduate of the school.

There has been some talk of an outside coach being engaged and the name of J. C. McCracken has been mentioned, but apparently there is no intention of having him come here.

"I wish to deny emphatically the truth of any such report," said Manager Abbott, of the football team this morning. "The University has embarked upon the graduate system of coaching and we are certainly not going to drop it after one year's trial. There has not been a thought of abandoning the plan and the coach next year, whoever he may be, will certainly be a Columbia man."

STUDENTS SAY FACULTY RULES RESPONSIBLE.

Columbia students blame the Faculty Athletic Committee for the poor football team. The undergraduates have not concealed their feelings for the rulings of the committee and declare that if it was not for it the college would be properly represented on the gridiron. The college paper ridicules the action of the committee and says alone has been responsible for a number of men who had retired from foot-

HARVARD MAY PROTEST GLASS.

Charge Is Made that Great Yale
Linesman Once Accepted
Money for Playing.

Yale is said to be in danger of losing Glass for the Harvard game, and it would be hard to imagine a greater calamity for the blue eleven. Glass is a tower of strength and tore great holes in the Princeton line at will last Saturday.

The New Haven men have had a tip from friends at Cambridge that a protest would be filed at once against Glass, and that every effort would be made to bar him from next Saturday's game.

Professionalism is the charge, and it is claimed that the Yale man played on the college while he was at the Syracuse University and with other members of the team received $20 for playing.

Having thus played for money, the Harvard people say Glass cannot compete with an amateur team.

No protest has been received at Yale as yet, but the authorities there lost no time in investigating the matter as soon as it was rumored.

A searching investigation was made, and the Yale committee reports the charges to be absolutely unfounded, and that Glass cannot be prevented from playing.

While the loss of Glass would be the worst thing perhaps that could happen to Yale just now, she would probably be able to win the game from Harvard anyway, for the latter eleven appears to be hopelessly outclassed for the contest. The Yale side is now 5 to 3 on Yale and will doubtless be 2 to 1 before the game Saturday.

Objection to Another Term, but Members Wouldn't Listen.

A. R. Shattuck, who has been president of the Automobile Club of America for two years, said some time ago that two years was long enough to serve and that he would give away to somebody else when the next election was held. The next election has been held and although Mr. Shattuck would like to have lain down the reins of the club's government, he was not allowed to do so, for the members named him for another term.

The other officers for the club for the coming year will be: Winthrop E. Bear, first vice-president; James S. Van derbilt, Jr., third vice-president; Jefferson B. Smith, treasurer; Governors for 1903, F. Chamberlain and Peter F. Chamberlain; Governor for one year, 1904, W. W. Whipple.

Danny Maher is the first American rider who has ever had the distinction of being jockey to the King of England. Another distinction he has gained was in earning the biggest amount of money in one year on the turf. His superior horsemanship set the English horse owners clamoring for his services, and when not engaged by his own stable he nearly always was offered a mount. As a consequence Danny is coming home in a few days with a whole bunch of five-pound notes in his pocket. According to authentic reports he won $125,000 in the saddle this year. That is just two and one-half times the amount the President of the United States, or the Governor-General of Canada gets for a year's service. It is a great deal more than any bank president in the world secures, and as a matter of fact, it might be said

"CROCK" BOYLE GAVE "YOUNG CORBETT" A HARD FIGHT.

Philadelphia Boxer, Floored Twice in First Round, Gave Champion Good Argument.

Philadelphia sporting men might well be proud of "Crock" Boyle, the little featherweight of their city. He met "Young Corbett," the champion of the class, at the Washington Sporting Club last night. No decision was given, but that is not permissible in bouts in Philadelphia, but had the law been broken and a verdict announced, anything worse than a draw would have been unfair to Boyle.

"Corbett's" poor showing was nothing more than his close friends have been looking for. It would be too harsh to say that "going the pace" was the cause of it, but late hours, too many big cigars, refusal to train for any fight but the one with McGovern are responsible for his lack of good form. There has been nothing in his exhibitions that would lead the unacquainted to believe that "Corbett" was the superior of any boy in his class. He is not the same boy that fought McGovern last Thanksgiving Day, and if he would get back in good favor with all his friends he had better get into shape for his fight hereafter. If he doesn't somebody may hand him a good one, as one of the exponents aptly remarked last night.

Ever since he defeated Terry McGovern for the championship "Corbett" has sought many bouts. He has had them, too, but in none has he demonstrated the skill that once made Terry McGovern the hero of all pugilists.

Boyle Goes Down to Rest.

Regarding the "go" with Boyle, "Corbett" depended solely on that great punch of his to win quickly. He landed Caliant was second for half a mile and then blew up.

On the opening day Imperialist beat Judge Phillips by a length and a half. Judge Phillips was a vastly different horse, going to the front in the first round, and was as pleased as a length and a half from Imperialist, who was hard ridden all through the last quarter. Imperialist was eight lengths in front of Marylander.

TERRY M'GOVERN'S OPINION OF "CORBETT'S" SHOWING.

Ex-Champion Says the Denverite Is a Great
Fighter, but He Must Train Hereafter.

Terry McGovern, the ex-featherweight champion, was given an idea last night in Philadelphia how he lost the championship to "Young Corbett" last Thanksgiving Day. Terry occupied a ringside seat at the Washington Sporting Club in Philadelphia last night and witnessed the bout between "Corbett" and "Crock" Boyle. It was the first opportunity that McGovern has had of seeing his conqueror in action since he defeated him, and he enjoyed it.

"There were two things which Corbett was greatly handicapped with, his poor condition and the fact that he was boxed one of the cleverest featherweight boxers I ever saw. Corbett's lack of condition prevented him from putting Boyle to sleep. If he had been in good shape he would have surely knocked out Boyle in the first round after 'Crock' got on his feet from the blow on the jaw."

"Corbett, in order to win fights in the future, must train for them and not think he can knock out these second-rate fighters when out of condition. I hope that Corbett will train for whatever battles he has hereafter, for if he doesn't he is liable to be knocked out by a third-rate fighter. I rooted hard for him to beat Boyle, as I would like to have seen him put Boyle out before the sixth round."

and the fact that he is one of the foremost jockeys in England speaks for his ability.

Maher was always more like a girl than a boy. He was a handsome youngster, with innocent brown eyes and a complexion that a society queen would envy. He looked delicate, yet he had the strength of a boy twice his age. His success lay in the fact that he had a perfect pair of hands, a seat that was centaure-like, and the art of coaxing was to him a science. He could make a horse hang on and try when the animal was really looking for a hole in the fence. His judgment of pace was excellent and won him many a race.

Maher comes home every winter. He would be a welcome addition to the ranks of riders here if he would only stay, but he prefers England as a racing point.

MANY BETS ARE RECORDED ON HARVARD-YALE GAME.

New Havenites' Showing Against Tigers Makes Them 5-to-3 Favorite for Saturday.

As a betting proposition the football game between Yale and Harvard on Saturday promises to be even a bigger thing than was the contest between the sons of Old Eli and Princeton last Saturday. Already many wagers have been recorded, and the Stock Exchange has been the scene of many of the bets. The strong game the New Haven team played against the Tigers has boosted their stock, and odds of 5 to 3 are offered that the Blue will wave over the Crimson at New Haven when the game is over Saturday.

One bet of $200 was made by a Harvard undergraduate that his team would score, and another of $100 to $400 that Yale would not tally was also made. Yale's team will return to New Haven to-day, but only light practice will be indulged in. On Thursday the real hard work will begin, and the coaching department has been reinforced by a half a dozen old Yale players.

Harvard is waiting over the lack of a good center. Experiments are being made with several players, but so far the coaches have been unable to find a suitable man for the position.

NO HARD WORK FOR YALE UNTIL THURSDAY.

(Special to The Evening World.) NEW HAVEN, Nov. 18.—Yale's football players will return from Hastings-on-the-Hudson to-day, where they went to recuperate after the game with Princeton on Saturday. Rafferty and Goss, despite their hard game, did not appear to want the rest given the other players, for they returned to New Haven yesterday not any the worse for wear. Hinkley will together take a hair rest in the practice preparatory to the big game with Harvard on Saturday.

The coaches are very well pleased with the men's condition and assert that the same team which lined up against the Tigers on Saturday will be in the field against the wearers of the Crimson. The team will not be given any hard work to speak of for the next two days, but on Thursday they will have their regular work and on Friday they will rest.

Last week the team was coached so as to best oppose a fast back field and a light line, but this week will be pitted against a heavy line, so the coaches will have to be careful in training the men, so as not to let any of them become stale.

Billy Rhodes, Yale's famous tackle and captain of the team in 1900, and Johnny Hall, the veteran end, are both expected to start this week. Hall and Hinkley will together take a hair rest in the practice preparatory to the big game with Harvard on Saturday. The team will not be given any hard work to speak of for the next two days, but on Thursday they will have their regular work and on Friday they will rest.

What makes the situation in the line all the more serious is the physical condition of Barnard, the big guard. Barnard has been thought for some time to be in a precarious condition, and his showing in the Dartmouth game proved that the rumors concerning him were correct. As a result he was given a complete rest yesterday.

Still another thing shows that Harvard is in a most serious condition. The appearance of Daring Green, center of the Harvard team, who arrived post haste from Washington and Jefferson College to augment the Harvard team, is a sign that the Harvard team is in a most serious condition.
